The Trail

Scene I

W. W. WARING
VICE-PRINCIPAL, WASHINGTON

Reporter, a young man.
Place, office at Washington.

R. (looks like a senior, wears a black suit conspicuously crossed by stripes, has taken parts in plays; thinks he's acting now.) Are you the keeper of the senior records?

W. W. W. (fearing a holdup) I am, but your name has eluded me.

R. (taking out Eva's fountain pen.) "Never mind my name.

W. W. W. (looking in book marked Records, Vol. 12 and turning from page to page.) Enrollment 209, exactly 100 boys and 109 girls; 24 placed on the National Honor Society; 12 were on Emporia scholarship team last year; 50 girls are letting their hair—

R. Stop! It's coming too fast for me, and I'm eldorm annoyed by speed. Illustrious names next, please.

W. W. W. (consulting card index.) Drell Nothern has broken the world's record for tardiness. Two tardies each day, five days a week, eighteen weeks—

R. Let up! More names please.

W. W. W. (reading) Royce Rearwin and Ellen Jones, the inspiration and life of the skippers' party; Fremont Knittle, a noise in the making; Russ Anderson, who packs Memorial Hall with senior girls; Harold Ziegler, who—

R. (sharply) Enough!

W. W. W. But there are many more, the McNutts, Geraldine Breunning, Levada Schultz, Grace Dopp, Eva Cooke—

R. I know when I've had enough. I have another hold-up before 4:00 o'clock.

Scene II

KATE B. MILES

DEAN OF GIRLS, WASHINGTON

Reporter, a lady with an idea.

Place, Room 6.

R. (looks like a poet, has dreamy eyes and lady-like manners. Carries a pencil, her own, and a note book. Cautiously). I want Miss Miles. Are you Miss Miles?

K. B. M. I am the dean of girls. What is your business here?

R. (timidly) I want to find out about the juniors, their I. Q's and that sort of thing.

K. B. M. (digging into her handbag for memoranda.) The interview will have to be short. Lucille Millikin is A number one in Latin; Alice Domino made the hightst score in English; Alice Stone and Dorothy Heel are the speediest typists; Kenneth Ross and Burton Powers take honors in chemistry. Then there are Edith Hammil, Robert Kidd, Leona Weir, Marybell Henning, Linnea Anderson, Miriam and Beatrice Snider and—

R. (writing furiously with her left hand) Haven't you any shieks or hall trees or flat tires or—

K. B. M. (with proper indignation) I know nothing about such pieces of furniture; neither do I drive a car. But if you mean Phil Bowman or Paul Lovan we have. But I have not time to classify such—

R. (gently) Furniture. (A deafening noise outside makes shouting necessary.) What's going on?

K. B. M. Probably the Percussion Club whispering. Wait until I call them down. (Stepping to the door) Edward Rice, Marie Kastner, Nell Bockius, Elizabeth Battersby, where are your mufflers? (To the reporter.) What else do you want to know.

R. Absolutely nothing. Thanks a lot.

Scene III

HOLLIS D. KEMPER
VICE-PRINCIPAL, LINCOLN

Reporter, a school girl with long hair.
Place, office at Lincoln.

R. (looks cute with her hair in a bun behind her left ear, is delighted with the idea of a real interview and shows it. Takes notes in the fly leaf of her American History. In a soft voice). Are you the professor here? I'm on the News staff and want to know about the sophomores. What's the enrollment?

H. D. K. (looking through file with one eye on the clock). Last count was 235.

R. Is it a smart set, professor?

H. D. K. Well some teachers think so. I've seen worse.

R. (determined to know the worst). I suppose the sophomores have school spirit?

H. D. K. Yes; they have so much they write orations on the subject. Frances Jury and Reba Kornes can tell you what you want to know about that.

R. Names help an article a lot. Who are the A's in the class?

H. D. K. (off hand). Betty Bachtold, Clarine Durham, Berniece Miller, Katherine Todd, Bob Ganoung, and Richard Porter are all on that list, and I can give you more.

R. No more, please. (Writing like a multigraph). Now give me some exceptional cases.

H. D. K. (without hesitating). Louise Paxton and Dwight Catherman have won the endurance test here. Ethel Todd is a big sister to a freshman, and Irene Hancock is another special case.

R. (nosing news). This is going to be a front page story. (Suddenly). Is Jane Surface in this class?

H. D. K. (admitting the fact with a nod). But she's absent to-day.

R. It's a nice day isn't it? Well I must get back to the office with this scoop.

Scene IV

MISS ANNA McCORMICK

DEAN OF GIRLS, LINCOLN

Reporter, a highbrow.

Place, Room 11.

R. (in knickers and red tie, probably eccentric nobleman incognito. Is humming a tune, sounds like "Oh, Look at That Baby." Walks and speaks with confidence.) May I borrow a piece of test paper? I want some dope on the freshmen.

A. McC. (outraged) This paper belong to the board of education.

R. That's all right. My father pays taxes. Let me have your pen. All set. What's the big noise today?

A. McC. (wearily) Probably the Guyton twins fighting.

R. Good stuff! Who else is famous here?

A. McC. (with spirit) If you mean in studies, there are Roberta Lebow, Lillian Rea, Lorene Miller, Imogene White, Kenneth Rearwin, Richard—

R. (looking bored) Wait a minute. I never took shorthand. Too many dull facts. Give me some color.

A. McC. (a little severely) June Smith and Ernestine Putnam are docrine artists. Bruce Swift in spite of his name has a heavy tardy record. Would you like some of his original excuses?

R. (yawning) Don't bother. I'm not a humorist.

A. McC. (continuing) Paul Jennings is a fast man on the basketball court. Paul Hankenson has grown five inches since September.

R. (cleverly) I'll say, a rising basketball player!

A. McC. Then there are Ambrose Law, Harriet Danielson, Frances Williams, Doyne Brown and—

R. (with another bored look.) We'll consider the interview over Miss McCormick as soon as I get the enrollment.

A. McC. (relieved.) Girls 166, boys 117.

Scene V

A. R. BALDWIN

VICE-PRINCIPAL, ROOSEVELT

Reporter, a vivacious brunette.

Place, office at Roosevelt.

R. (dressed in brown check sport dress, has dainty freckles on a nose that wrinkles expressively. Is chewing gum and seems to be in a hurry. Aloud.) Oh, bother! I hope he'll wait. (To the office girl.) Where's Mr. Baldwin? I thought he was here at 3:30. He ought to be, oughtn't he? (Sees man at desk) Oh, Mr. Baldwin, can you give me some stuff about the eighth grade in about three seconds. I have an engagement, and I have to hurry. I want interesting facts. You know, the stuff the paper wants.

A. R. B. (taking his time.) Let me see—393 enrolled in the class and 95 of them won writing certificates in the seventh grade.

R. (writing on her pad) What a record! Who's doing squad duty on the stairs today?

A. R. B. Bruce Kline makes the ascent six times each day and fears he may wear that stair out.

R. How absolutely funny! What is your greatest sport?

A. R. B. Rubber--band target practice is an eighth grade mania. Otis Faulkner has become the champion banister slider; Martha Dodge is the humorist.

R. How simply ridiculous! Why Harold wouldn't think—(impulsively) Do tell me more. Who lead the class in grades? This must be a serious interview.

A. R. B. Barbara Myers, Eleanor Frederick, Betty Miller, Mary Louise Gurley, Dorothea Harris, Sarah Ruth Cook, Robert Smith, Frederick Gemmill, Malcolm Carr—

R. (Horn is heard outside.) If that is a green car, I must go. (Rushes to the window) It is! How perfectly lovely! I'll get the rest of those honor students tomorrow.

Scene VI

MISS AGANETHA ENTZ

DEAN OF GIRLS, ROOSEVELT

Reporter, a red-haired flapper.

Place, Room 12.

R. (walks in on high heels, powders her nose, re-arranges her permanent and seems to feel greatly improved. Talking to herself and gesticulating) I wonder if this can be Miss Entz's cell. (Discovers some one at the desk) Is this Miss Entz?

A. E. (puzzled) Can I do anything for you?

R. (gushing) Heaps. I'm on an assignment. Tell me about your kiddies. I'm writing a big story for the school annual. How many toddlers in the seventh grade?

A. E. (with proper dignity) Approximately 247 boys and girls are enrolled. More girls than boys are—

R. (interrupting with appropriate gestures) How unfortunate! What are the favorite pastimes of these youngsters? I want to feature their play.

A. E. (after considering) Marbles, losing their books, and pushing. Emmy Lou Kramer is a great note writer. Maxine Sutton draws. Eleanor Lovan writes stories and poems.

R. (More gestures) Talented youngsters, I'll say! Do give me more names. Names take so well with the reading public.

A. E. (thinking hard). Ruthanna Epp, Virginia Fitch, Juliette Oberg and Evelyn Buenning, I think, attended every athletic game this year.

R. (writing fast) And mere infants! One more question only. Who gets the best grades?

A. E. Mary Elizabeth Otty received six A's for a semester grade. Then Eileen Boys, Edward Mertel, John Harris, Margie Gableman, Stanley Mariotta, Mildred Henry, Laura Johnson, Lyle Bel were all on the honor roll.

R. (gesticulating wildly) Don't all me any more. It's after four o'clock. School's out for me. I simply can't stay a minute longer.

Twenty-four seniors were added to the Salina High School Chapter of the National Honor Society at the 1928 election. In accordance with the constitution of the society, membership was limited to those seniors in the upper one-third of the class who best met the qualifications of character, service to the school, and leadership. Election was by the faculty of the senior high school.

Installation of members, in charge of W. N. Van Slyck, principal of the high school, took place on the evening of April 24, at the First Methodist Church parlors. W. S. Heusner, superintendent of the city schools, gave the address of the evening. Parents of the new members, faculties of Washington and Lincoln Buildings, and all members of the Salina Chapter were invited guests.

Officers of the National Honor Society chosen from the 1928 membership are: Dale Haworth, president; Perry Snider, vice-president; Dorothy Andrews, secretary; and George Pryor, treasurer.

NEWS STAFF

Harold Ziegler	Editor
Mildred Greene	Associate Editor
Thelma Woodhouse and Dorothy Ficken	Feature Editors
Benjamin Lantz	Sport Editor
Fred Weaver	Exchange Editor
Pearl Baker	Clubs Editor
Bernadette Brummel, Eva Cooke, and Leone Flamme	School Editors
John Eberhardt	Business Manager
Raymond Haggart	Advertising Manager

These eleven seniors, assisted by Raymond Haggart, advertising manager, made up the class in journalism under the direction of Miss Carpenter and put out the News, a five column, four-page sheet, every Friday. Fifth and sixth hours were regularly given up to journalism, but the staff added the lunch recess, study hall periods, and activity hour for running down anything and everything that promised news for the weekly sheet.

Harold Ziegler, editor, assisted by Mildred Greene, associate, did all the executive work connected with the publication. John Eberhardt and Raymond Haggart kept the ads up to paying figures. Fred Weaver clipped exchanges and preserved an up-to-date mailing list. Thelma Woodhouse and Dorothy Ficken were the snappy feature writers. Benjamin Lantz represented the High School Press at every athletic game and track meet, and when new sport terms were needed created them. Pearl Baker centered her attention on high school clubs. There was not an executive session of any kind that she did not attempt to make public. All the remaining news in Washington, Lincoln, and Roosevelt was salvaged by Bernadette Brummel, Eva Cooke, and Leone Flamme.

The big day of the week was Friday when the News went to press.

TRAIL STAFF

Laurence A. Spence Editor-in-Chief
 Wanda Snyder, Mary Louise Cost Associate Editors
 Dale Haworth, Stuart Mudge Business Managers
 Perry Snyder, Seth Dole Athletics
 Thelma Woodhouse, Grayce Crooks, Lucille Dahl, Neva Barnes, Ruth Hammontree

The twelve members of the Trail Staff organized early in September, elected Laurence Spence, editor; Wanda Snyder and Mary Louise Cost, associate editors; and Dale Haworth and Stuart Mudge, business managers. Monday was named as regular staff day for plans and assignments, and work began at once under the direction of Miss Katherine Gemmill, faculty advisor of the Trail.

Laurence Spence as editor gave the second hour every day and some time not in his school day to planning and carrying out details of the Trail. The snapshot pages were his special diversion. Wanda Snyder ran the Trail typewriter every open third hour; Mary Louise Cost was quick on assignments and collaborated with Grayce Crooks in writing the calendar. Thelma Woodhouse prepared the senior data, wrote the rime class prophecy, and made other contributions. Her experience as a News reporter added to her efficiency as a staff member.

Perry Snider and Seth Dole contributed all the athletic write-ups and season scores. Lucille Dahl, Neva Barnes, and Ruth Hammontree, the remaining members of the staff, were active in gathering and assembling material, and boosting features.

The business end of the Trail was handled by Dale Haworth and Stuart Mudge, who out-solicited all other annual business managers and helped the editor make the annual ads pay the advertisers.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Interest in dramatics this year made it necessary to divide the club into a senior and a junior division that met on alternate Thursdays for entertainment and study. Twenty members in each club gave opportunities for varied programs, frequent appearance of the members on these programs, and helpful sessions in the study of drama.

During the late winter the two clubs jointly produced under the supervision of Miss Lucille Means, "Two Crooks and a Lady" by Eugene Pillot. The persons of the play were Miller, the Hawk, taken by Harold Ziegler; Lucille, his accomplice, by Eva Cooke; Mrs. Simms-Vane, by Ellen Jones; and Miss Jones, her companion, by Helen Lucille Aich. Officers of the law were represented by Paul Lovan and Bob Smith.

On Class Day the Dramatic Club presented "The Bungalow Bride," a clever one-act comedy by E. E. and A. R. Kidder. The cast, selected from the members of the senior club, was made up of Mary Louise Cost, Geraldine Bruenning, Neva Barnes, Leah Gamble, Zona Waser, Helen Blankenship, and Geraldine Wilson.

Debate work this year and preparation for the league clashes were carried on through a regular debate class that met at the sixth hour throughout the season. Nine students who elected debate as a school activity and who were drawn from both senior and junior classes made up this group.

The question debated this year was "Resolved, that the principle of the McNary-Haugen Bill as passed by the sixty-ninth Congress be enacted into legislation." Practice debates with Class B schools, Kipp, Assaria, Minneapolis, and Solomon, put the team in good shape for the final clashes with opponents in the Central Kansas League. In the seven league encounters Salina won from St. John's Military Academy, Abilene, Lindsborg, and Herington, and lost from McPherson, Ellsworth, and Chapman.

Besides debating the class studied the "Art of Debate" in regular daily assignments as preliminary to reading, collecting material, and writing briefs on the league question. J. E. Anderson of the history department acted as teacher and coach.

Officers of the Debate Club were Ralph Peterson, president; Robert Smith, vice-president; David Steele, secretary and treasurer. Other members of the club were Jane Clark, Margaret Woodward, Burton Powers, Kenneth Bowers, Kenneth Bowman, and Harold Shrieve.

PAUL CORNWELL, Captain. Two letter man. No question about it; Cornwell was the best tackle in the league; hence his unanimous choice for All-League berth. Having an exceedingly fine build and also possessing football sense, Paul led his teammates to a tie championship, mainly by inspiring self-confidence in his men.

ARCHIE STUCK, Fullback. Brilliantly finishing four years of football, Arch, first four-letter man, was named as the All-League full back, and what's more as captain of the same mythical eleven. His smashing, driving, spectacular way of carrying the ball gave him the name of the greatest ground gainer in the league. Stuck was an ideal backfield man and one who could play on any man's team.

RAY HOUCK, Tackle. No one wanted harder to win for S. H. S. than did Ray Houck. With the experience gained in winning last year's letter, coupled with Ray's great size and weight, he had most of his opponents at a disadvantage. Especially hard to get off his feet and always one of the first to break through, Houck gave all he had for the team and finished his high school career with being placed on the All-League Second Team.

Ninety

WILLIAM JEGEN, End. "Bill," with lots of scrap and plenty of fight, seldom was to blame for a gain of the opponents around end. Death on passes and on the lookout for the other fellow's breaks, Jegen played a fine game throughout the season, winning as a reward honorable mention in the All-League choices. Everywhere in the Abilene game he was seen smearing Abilene's plays, mussing up their passes, and in general causing havoc with their strategy.

FRED BAXTER, End. Three letter man. This was "Bax's" last year but he made it his greatest. At McPherson Fred played a great game, and at Concordia he saved the Maroons from being sent home with a shutout, by recovering a fumble and racing 38 yards for the only Salina score. Always carrying his share of the fight, Baxter's end was a favorite for the Salina backs in attempts to go around. He gained the honor of being placed on the All-League Eleven.

RAYMOND HAGGART, Quarterback. Although not so large as his fellow players, "Hag" played his first and last year with the best of them. At McPherson it was largely his punts, though not breaking any records for distance, but oh, so accurate and so steady, that gave Salina its chance to win. An excellent ball carrier, "Hag" could wiggle through unbelievably small holes and plant the ball far into the enemy's territory before being downed.

Ninety-one

RUSSELL ANDERSON, Halfback. "Russ" played his first year on the school eleven at halfback where he showed that he knew his "stuff." Even though not fast, he made up for this by his ball-carrying tactics. See "Russ" hugging the ball and spilling men right and left, reminded one of a ship plowing through heavy seas. At McPherson Anderson played his best, ripping through time after time, for a long gain, and snagging a pass to make a first down.

EARL STUCK, Halfback. Asking no quarter and in turn giving none, "Little Stuck" earned his first letter and showed that his brother, Arch, hadn't monopolized all the football talent in the Stuck family. He worked in the backfield, fighting hard, toting the ball, leading interference, and doing all he possibly could. He has two more years to play and should develop into an outstanding star. At Concordia and Ellsworth Earl exhibited his best skill.

VERNON SMYTHE, Center. Smythe, a great find to Hinshaw when he enrolled in S. H. S. last fall, came here from Junction City High with two years' experience on its first team. At the pivot position Vern showed his splendid skill in passing, surely and accurately, to the backs. In the game with Abilene he was the chief mainstay of the defense and by recovering a fumble started the scoring. Smythe received honorable mention in All-League All Stars.

Ninety-two

ADRIAN CHILDS, Guard. Childs knew how to "hold that line" and give his best whether the team was winning or losing. His consistency made him a great asset to the team. Though not starring in any particular game, it would have been difficult, if not impossible, to have done without his guarding. Honorable mention in the All-League All Stars was bestowed upon him for his worthy efforts during the season. He has one more year and much is to be expected of him.

WALTER KNIGHT, Halfback DeLuxe. Spectacularly, "Walt" finished his first year of football by literally running wild through Abilene in the greatest game of the year. Repeatedly taking more punishment, he advanced the ball until he had carried it within scoring distance. Few in the league were more difficult to stop. He was placed on the All-League Second Team. Probably Knight will be the nucleus of the '28 squad.

RANDALL KORN, Guard. Korn came from Great Bend. When he turned out for practice, he added ideal material to Hinshaw's aspirants for the first eleven. His playing in the early games of the season promised him a regular docket on the team's roll, but a bad knee kept him off the field most of the season. Against McPherson Korn played his best.

Ninety-three

The Trail

EARL McNUTT, Guard. One of the heaviest men on the team, McNutt developed into a first-string man with the skill acquired from being a last year first-string "sub". He was not great as an offensive player because of his lack of speed, but as a defensive man he was unexcelled, its being virtually impossible to get him off his feet.

HARRY NELSON, Guard. A member of last year's squad, "Howdy" used this experience to aid him in getting a permanent berth on the first eleven. When a hole was needed or when a man was to be tackled, Harry was willing to try. A smashing, tearing, scrapping type of player who next year should find himself and become an extraordinary performer. He has two more years.

DONALD FARMER, Guard. Although not a letter man, Farmer worked hard and saw some real service, however, hardly enough to be honored with a letter. He had the size, the willingness-to-try, and the ability. He played at several positions, but accomplished most as guard. Farmer was a three year squad member.

Ninety-four

CAPTAIN ERNEST OBERG. The diminutive sharp-shooter of the Maroon cagers led his team to the runner-up mark in the league race. Though sometimes hampered by his size when the "heaving in" of a long difficult shot or the "pot-shooting" of a free throw was needed, "Swede" could hold his own with anyone. At Abilene "Swede", the star of the game, came in from the bench and proceeded to put the game on ice for Salina by superlative goal shooting in the last quarter.

ROGER LAGERBERG. Surprisingly fast at handling the ball, wonderfully accurate in making almost impossible "tip-in" shots, "Lag" won the greatest honor that can come to a C. K. L. athlete by being chosen as an All-League forward. In Lagerberg Hinshaw had a nalmost ideal man for a forward position. Roger, lanky yet little, tall yet heavy, played a fast game in every minute of the contest whether against an easy or a hard opponent.

ARCHIE STUCK. Stuck is easily the greatest basketball athlete Salina High has ever developed. The only unanimous choice and the captain of the All-Central Kansas League "Mythical Five," he broke all scoring records, not only for a single game but also for a season. "Arch," a four-letter man, has grown better and faster with the passing of each year until now any college or university coach would welcome him to his squad. In the Chapman game here he made the amazing individual score of 38 points, breaking the former record of 33 points made in 1927.

Ninety-five

RUSSELL ANDERSON. "Russ", neither a sensational basketballer nor a spectacular player, was placed on the district all-tournament team, winning such distinction by cool, heady, and remarkably defensive playing. Anderson had the size and the ability that Hinshaw sought. Although he played a close, light game under the back-board and warded off attempt after attempt for goals, he committed fewer personals than any other regular first-team man of any team in the league.

LEONARD CHANCE. With a year of experience under his belt, Chance developed into a first team man but was handicapped by poor eyesight which kept him from many games. Leonard played dependably throughout the season and at times when "hot", his playing was brilliant. As to downright hard work in training he contributed more than his share.

WALTER KNIGHT. "Walt" was chosen for the All-League team, the first colored athlete in the history of the league to win such honors. After having played only one year in the league although only a junior, he was without equal when it came to pulling down rebounds or in accomplishing an especially hard task of fast guarding. Many a point was added to Salina's score by a long shot from Knight at the center of the court.

Ninety-six

CARL FINNEY. Finney was a letter man and, although a substitute, a valuable member of the second string. Carl always played a clean game and on account of his quick thinking and dodging will be a great asset to next year's team. He is a junior.

LLOYD MILLISON. Lloyd Millison reported for a try-out for the first time this year and became one of the most valuable substitutes. On account of sickness, he was unable to play in many of the games. Lloyd was a swift but careful player and played good ball throughout the season.

CECIL MILLER. Miller is another player well-worth mentioning. Owing to a sprained ankle he received in the Abilene game he was forced to withdraw from active service on the squad. He played a good swift game and was considered a fine shot. Miller, who played this year as a substitute, will have two more years at Salina High School.

Ninety-seven

JOHN EBERHARDT. With a Junior-High letter and a year of squad work behind him, John grew better with each game. Though not fast or heavy enough for playing, Eberhardt earned the right to wear an "S" and was always ready when a substitute was needed. Hard, steady playing characterized Eberhardt's game.

ROLAND BANE. Bane, an aggressive and hard fighter under the opponents basket, was used as a substitute. His speed enabled him to break through almost any defense, and his accurate passing made him a fine floor man. Bane was always steady and knew just what to do.

ALBERT BENNER, Asst. Business Mgr.

Along the Trail of '28

(A Prophecy)

O, heed ye now my story
If you'd know the pride and glory
Of the members of the class of '28;
Although far apart we're sund'ered,
And a few of us have blundered,
For the most our deeds are worthy to relate.

I was speeding 'long the highway,
Never looking to the byway
For an officer who might enforce the law;
My speedometer said eighty,
But my thoughts they were so weighty
That that lady traffic cop I never saw.

'Twas the tenth year, I was musing,
Since our class, a group so choosing,
Had received diplomas at Memorial Hall;
Suddenly she stood before me,
Waved a heavy "billy" o'er me,
And commanded me to follow at her call.

To New Cambria she took me,
And for speeding did she book me,
And she bade me tarry till the judge appeared;
So I took a chair and waited
(Ah, my life was surely fated)
While my captor through her horn-rimmed glasses peered.

Then—I recognized her features;
She was one of those strange creatures
That one seldom meets upon his daily rounds;
I stared at her for a second,
For I surely hadn't reckoned
Upon meeting my old classmate—MAR-GARET KOUNS!

When she saw 'twas her old croney,
Then her glance became less stony,
And she told me she was speed cop of the place.
We had just sat down together,
Never mindful of the weather,
When the judge, GEORGE PRYOR, came to hear my case.

Just for old times sake he told me,
It would not be right to hold me,
But I begged that they should tell me of the rest.
After thinking o'er the matter,
They at once began to chatter,
And I found I was a very welcome guest.

(What I Heard)

"Their activities are varied;
More than half of them are married;
MARGARET HARVEY runs a dance hall down by Kipp.

DANTON GROVER is a preacher,
EARL McNUTT a Latin teacher,
And he makes a good one if you want a tip.

EDITH FESSLER is a singer,
And they say she's some "humdinger";
The best housewife in the state is GRAYCE
CROOKS.

ROYCE REARWIN, Margaret guesses,
Is head salesman down at Kress's,
And he uses his spare time for writing books.

The demurest little quaker
Is our old-time friend, PEARL BAKER,
While her bosom chum, MISS WALL, flits
'round Broadway.

Poor Pearl grieves sincerely for her,
Weeps some briny tear-drops o'er her,
But she cannot make her choose the "better way".

Now the two friends hesitated.
After this had been related,
For the best-trained memories will often fail;

Then George happened to remember
That since back in last December
He'd had two of our illustrious class in jail,

Grieved at this communication
I cut short the conversation
And insisted that he let me know their names.

So he sent a man to ring the bells
That would call them from their cell's,
While I wondered if 'twere Harry, John, or James.

LAWRENCE MUIR and SETH DOLE
Now across my vision stole
Wearing prison garb of somewhat dingy hue.
Seth for selling bootleg liquor.
Had arrived in jail some quicker
Than did Lawrence who does chicken-stealing rue.

If I wished more information
Of the "pride of all creation"
They suggested that I go to DOROTHY
TODD,
Who, along with LOUISE MASCHAL,
Has been teaching down at Haskell
Where they're vamping wealthy Indians by the squad.

So I leaped into my flivver,
All excited and a-quiver,
And set out to hunt these long-lost pals of mine.
In a short time I had found them,
Hordes of Indians around them,
But for all of that they both were looking fine.

So I made clear my position
And let them know my mission
Was to learn about our dear old high school class.
They quite willingly consented,
Not a question was resented,
They told me very frankly of what had come to pass.

"Our old classmate, MILDRED GREENE,
That "little blond-haired queen",
Is known to people now as Mrs. Lantz;
She and BEN live up in Maine;
He's conductor on a train,
While Mildred's planning soon a trip to France.

LAURENCE SPENCE sells hot tamales;
ELLEN JONES, for all her follies,
Is a missionary to the Fiji Isles—
Yes, she makes 'em all religious,

Fact they say her work's prodigious,
And she's taught 'em to observe the latest styles.

STUART MUDGE has an invention,
We must not forget to mention,
That's designed to help the short man out
a bit .
At a little wheel's rotation
He can reach an elevation
Far above the height where six-foot cowboys sit.

NEVA BARNES made her impression
When she wrote her "true confession";
KATHERINE MARLIN runs a home for orphan mice.
If you're wanting to get married,
Buy a car, or to be buried,
You should go to GLADYS NEEDELS for advice.

DALE HAWORTH and FRED WEAVER
Are in Iceland trapping beaver;
FREMONT KNITTLE acts as bootblack to her brother,
Who with his broadcasting station
Has astonished all the nation
And is starting now to build himself another.

MARGARET KIRK and LEAH GAMBLE,
So I learned while on my ramble,
The most dignified of spinsters are today;
They would run and hide their faces,
Wring their hands and cry, "Good Gracious!"
Should a poor man near their lonely dwelling stray.

And I learned that PERRY SNIDER
Is a brave and bold rough-rider,
Like the ones the theaters show us, don't you know.
And (I most forgot to mention, but it was not my intention)
VIRGIL DONMYER runs the Royal picture show.

The most important person
'Twixt Topeka and MacPherson Is RUTH DIMICK, (let us praise her to the stars!)

She achieved her fame by making,
Though the odds where most heart-breaking,
The first non-stop flight to the planet Mars.

Now I thought I'd take my leave,
For I could not but believe
That this famous person Ruth could tell me more.
Once again I cranked my flivver
Till the thing began to quiver;
Then I took my seat and speeded from the door.

Ruth was in a mood for talking
When I to her door came walking,
And some very interesting things she quickly said:
IRMA FALLIS is today
Employed in a cafe
To swat flies that roost upon the busy patron's heads.

BOB SMITH arrayed in plainest duds
Now makes his living raising "spuds".
JOHN EBERHARDT a hobo is they say;
LUCILLE DAHL'S a soda "perker"
And I guess some little worker—

JACK SEITZ is raising whiskers in Bombay.

Then Ruth pointed to a sign
That hung upon a pine
And was by the western breezes being tossed.

It was painted flaming red,
And this is what it said:
"For Dog Catcher—MARY LOUISE COST!"

RAY HAGGART'S pugilism.
Merits little criticism;
DOROTHY ANDREWS is a star in Hollywood.

Her work has reached perfection,
Under Ray Houck's firm direction.
EVA COOKE'S a janitress I understood.

I had planned to keep on going
Learning all that was worth knowing,
But I found my engine had run out of gas;
So, unless some more you buy me
So that onward I may hie me,
You have heard the last of our illustrious
class.

ADVERTISING SECTION

Business Managers: Dale Haworth and Stuart Mudge

These two business managers have broken all previous advertising records, and are giving the advertisers full value for their money.

The Trail this year has a circulation of over one thousand two hundred copies, and is furnished to almost one thousand pupils on student activity tickets. Advertisements in this annual carry the greatest possible value to both the advertiser and the reader. The annual is bound in a flexible leather cover, carries more pages than in previous years, and has many new features. The advertisements are run opposite the calendar for the year, and among our jokes.

The following advertisers have bought space in The Trail, and the Trail staff devotes this page to an acknowledgement of the support of these business institutions:

Miss Miles: "How do you tune these jazz instruments?"

Paul Buenning: "You don't."

Mr. Baldwin: "What is your boy taking up at school?"

Mr. Smith: "Space, nothing but space."

Mr. Waring: "What do you expect to be when you graduate?"

James McC.: "An old man."

Ellen Jones: "Do you know the difference between a cigarette and a stick of dynamite?"

Clemens Andreen: "No, what is it?"

Ellen: "Well, you had better find out."

Thelma W.: "Did you read my poem in today's paper?"

Junior: "Yes, and it alone was worth the two cents."

Grayce Crooks: "Why didn't you laugh at Mr. Anderson's joke?"

Fred Baxter: "I'm flunking anyway."

Sophie: "Is that man rich?"

Same thing: "I'll say so; he doesn't even know his son's in college."

First junior: "Too bad Shakespeare wasn't born in America."

Another one: "Why so?"

Original junior: "I said he was in Miss Gemmill's final."

Mr. Anderson: "Andreen, when was the Treaty of Paris."

Andreen: "Why, Mr. Anderson, I'm absent today."

Mr. Anderson: "Pardon me. Miss Greene, you may answer the question."

Seth Dole: "Did you hear about the absent-minded professor who rolled under the dresser and waited for his collar button to come find him?"

Dale H.: "No, what is it?"

Vernon P.: "What is this you wrote on my paper?"

Mr. Anderson: "I told you to write plain-er."

The Trail

Jan. 27. McPherson won a last minute victory in basketball. Did our boys play? I'll say.

February 2—French Club learns to play Pigeon-Vole.

February 3—Operetta tryouts from four o'clock to six o'clock. Mr. Lebow and Miss Means pass the endurance test.

February 6—Operetta cast bulletined. Fern Hederstedt and Richard Herzig take the leads.

February 7—Nothing doing except hall trees growing.

February 10—Salina crowd off to McPherson. Score 28-30. Salina's loss.

February 14—All Schools' Night. Maroons beat Ellsworth. Juniors and freshmen with dates paddled by seniors and sophomores.

February 16—"The Whole Town's Talking" draws an appreciative crowd. Karl Finney and Inez Johnson make their debut.

February 17—Talk by Postmaster Robb on George Washington. Too short for relief in third hour.

February 20—John Eberhardt comes to school without Wiggley's Thought Producer. Jaws, however, keep up rotary motion.

February 21—Salina overwhelms Abilene! Peppy crowd cheers the Maroons.

February 22—Washington's birthday—holiday. No operetta practice.

February 23—Senior class snake is displayed in the halls. Miss Moore drops her bucket.
